

DARTMOUTH TEAM CRIPPLED

Crowley, Right End of Harvard Team, in Action

Will the injuries of two star Dartmouth players jeopardize the chances of the team in the game against Harvard on Saturday?

This is the question the football world is asking today.

The answer is an emphatic "No" from Harvard.

And to emphasize the feeling that prevails in the Dartmouth camp they have strung across the street facing the campus an enormous banner bearing the words:

ON TO THE STADIUM.

The two injured men were of the best that Dartmouth had for its formidable squad. Intercol and Hawley were on the line in the three-point contest with Princeton. It is doubtful if they will be able to play against the Crimson.

But Dartmouth has a great second string and Coach Robinson is preparing to put up an open end which will give the team a splendid start. The team is expected to win the game.

The loss of the two star players is a serious blow to the team. The team is expected to win the game.

The team is expected to win the game.

The team is expected to win the game.

The team is expected to win the game.

Mrs. Hains, Indignant, Says 'OUR' CHILDREN

WIFE OF ANNIS'S SLAYER REPLIES TO STATEMENT OF MOTHER-IN-LAW THROUGH COUNSEL.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hains, through her counsel, Frederick J. Norton, of the Boston building, today made the following statement in reply to the statement made by Mrs. Annis Hains, mother of her husband.

Mrs. Hains considers it an insult to her husband's family to say that the children in the family were not his. She says that the children were his and that she was his wife.

Mrs. Hains says that she was married to her husband in 1885 and that they had three children. She says that the children were his and that she was his wife.

SUN WORSHIPPER WINS IN BIG SUIT

MRS. SHAW, DEW BATH DEVOTEE, RETAINS CONTROL OF FORTUNE.

Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw won a sweeping and signal victory in the matter of the appointment of a conservator for her estate today.

When First Judge Charles J. McGuire of the Middlesex County Probate Court held his decision that she is not only fully capable of managing her own estate, but that the petitioner, Miss Mabel Dutton, her niece, was not justified in bringing the action to take the management of her property out of her own hands.

The case, known as the Sun Worshipper case, attracted unusual interest, as it involved the management of the estate of a woman who was a devotee of the sun.

But let's scalp. You don't need "tonic" or "grower" or "renewer" or "juvenerator." Most of those things are rank frauds. If you have tried them, you know it. What you need is a cleanser. The trouble with soaps and shampoos generally is that they move all the oily secretion from the scalp and scalp, and rob them of the very thing that Nature provided to keep the head moist and supple, and hair lustreous. You are advised to use Brit's Head Wash, which is not merely something to clean the scalp and hair, but it replaces the oil that removes. There is in it a free oil that leaves on both the scalp and hair just about the same amount of oily matter that Nature herself supplies. Brit's Head Wash cleans the head

It would have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or some other ailment, whatever the prescription is simple and can be made at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription shop. It is a good idea to shake them well in a bottle.

It is Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kalmegh, one-half ounce; Compound Sassafras, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal. It will take a few doses of blood to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble.

and swelling, weakness and backache, pain along the kidneys, etc. It is especially valuable in cases of recurring chronic rheumatism, because it cleanses the blood and restores the eliminative tissues of the kidneys.

It gives them life and power to assist in the work of the liver, stomach and spleen and ureter and urea and from the blood, reformation and kidney and bladder trouble. It is a powerful cleanser of the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation. It is a powerful purgative. Sassafras cleans and enriches the blood. Compound Kalmegh is the Karmozin Compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe for use.

Van Camp's come to you, fresh and savory, ready for instant serving.

No work and no waiting. A dozen cans in the house mean a dozen meals all cooked. And such delicious meals! After all your work, your home-baked beans are never half so good.

Nutty—Mealy—Whole

That's more than twice the heat that gets to the center of your baking dish. We apply that fierce heat for 90 minutes, and the result is our beans are digestible. That is a very important fact. Then we bake in live steam—not in dry heat. And we do our baking after the cans are sealed.

Van Camp's

PORK AND BEANS

BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

Once let your folks taste Van Camp's beans and they'll frown if you serve them others. That nutty flavor, that tang and zest, are missing in minor brands. Please learn how good beans can be. Then we shall not need to say again, "Insist on Van Camp's."

84% Nutriment

Beans are Nature's choicest food—23 per cent nitrogenous; 84 per cent nutriment.

- Like meat in their food value, but not like it in cost. See how many you get for 10 cents.
- They should be a daily dish—not an occasional. They are appetizing and hearty; all people like them.
- Perhaps you serve beans once a week now, because they are hard to prepare. Or because your people like other things better when beans are not rightly cooked.
- Twice it different when you serve Van Camp's.
- You will serve them for luncheons—steaming hot. You'll serve them for dinners—in salad.
- You will hardly be able to serve them too often, for people don't tire of Van Camp's.

We Pay Most

We use only the whitest and plumpst Michigan beans. They are picked out by hand from the choicest part of the crop. We pay for such beans from six to seven times what some beans would cost.

We use only sound, vine-ripened tomatoes. Cheap sauce is made from tomatoes picked green, and ripened in shipment. Or of scraps from a canning factory.

We could have such sauce ready-made for exactly one-fifth what we spend to make ours. But it would lack that richness, that sparkling zest, which Nature gives to Van Camp's.

No wonder that some brands sell cheaper than ours, yet pay you poorer more profit.

But the best beans are cheap enough. They are even most economical. For you will eat more beans, in place of meat, when you serve Van Camp's.

Prices: 10, 15 and 20 cents per can

What Is Bragging?

It Is Simply Blowing Off Steam.
Play the Country That Brags No Longer

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

John Graham Brooks, to whom the world owes a number of valuable books, has just published a volume entitled "As Others See Us." This volume will be read with interest by many thousands, and we recommend it strongly to all of those whose reading is moderately wide, and who have plenty of time for reading. To others we should recommend "The Social Unrest." Get that book, and find Brooks at his best.

In the present volume, "As Others See Us," published by Macmillan, Mr. Brooks gives us good naturedly, brilliantly, briefly, and with enlightening comment, the result of a great deal of reading.

To amuse himself in traveling (wisely saving hours on the train that others waste) Brooks read some seventy-five of the best known authors that have especially devoted themselves to criticizing the United States. These critics, whom Brooks condenses and measures, are of all kinds and of many nationalities. A majority of them are prejudiced and superficial. A few are intelligently severe. There could be no better volume than this new book by Brooks for the man who would like to know what educated and fairly intelligent men of other countries have thought of America in the period of her growth.

The thing that interests us Americans is the great agony that fills the breasts of all foreign critics—or nearly all—BECAUSE AMERICANS BRAG SO MUCH. We learn from Mr. Brooks that every year and month Englishmen, Frenchmen, Dutchmen come to America only to go back and report with grief that we spend most of our time bragging about ourselves and our country. We were complained of as braggarts one hundred and fifty years ago. And we are still ridiculed as braggarts today.

Kipling recently, in a series of mushy and poorly written articles, described a group of Canadians sailing with him into the Canadian harbor and looking upon the Canadian town. Kipling tells us that it was quite easy to know by their quiet manner that he was surrounded by Canadians, entering a Canadian port, and not by Americans, entering an American port. He missed the American bragging.

So he did, and here is the point. He missed the American bragging, he also missed the American city, the American port, the American success.

He talks in the same articles, does Kipling, about the brave Canadians that went to the Boer War. And he talks also about the capture of Quebec by Wolfe.

Kipling forgets, or perhaps he doesn't know, that Wolfe, who took Quebec, WAS HIMSELF ONE OF THE GREATEST BRAGGARTS THAT EVER LIVED. Before he was sent over to Canada to represent England he strutted up and down before the Prime Minister, waving his sword, bragging about the things he would do, and the Prime Minister was tempted to relieve him of his command.

But when Wolfe reached the scene of action, when he was floating along the river in the dark, approaching the heights of Quebec, that he was to scale at the cost of his life, THAT BRAGGING OF HIS WAS CHANGED INTO ACTION. He didn't brag as he went silently, almost breathlessly, up the steep face of the rocks, and he didn't brag as he struggled with the great and generous French soldier, Montcalm. And neither of them as they lay dying bragged. That was the hour of WORK.

We would tell Mr. Kipling and all Englishmen, and Mr. Brooks himself, who is a little inclined to apologize for the American bragging, this: THE MAN, ESPECIALLY IN YOUTH, WHO LACKS THE ENTHUSIASM THAT CAUSES BABYISH BRAGGING, OFTEN LACKS THE POWER AND THE WILL THAT CAUSE VICTORY AND REAL ACHIEVEMENT.

It is true that the English to-day brag little. Must it not also be said, in the friendliest spirit, that the English of to-day have not very much to brag about?

For instance, the Englishman Wolfe, destined to achieve glory for his country, was a braggart of the choicest type, whereas the young Englishmen and the young Canadians who went down to the Boer War would have felt forever disgraced if they had bragged at all. They DIDN'T BRAG, but they DIDN'T DO very much else.

The youthful American returning from Europe and sailing into New York Harbor is apt to brag violently, if he has a convenient and helpless Englishman to listen. And the Canadian who sails into a Canadian harbor is apt to brag very little. He keeps quiet.

But does not the difference between New York City and anything in Canada justify some of the bragging? And what is far more important than justifying bragging, do not the achievements of the United States people as a whole speak better for that people than the achievements of those that have lived in Canada?

For instance, when we had our comic opera war with Spain, newspapers and individuals bragged a good deal of what we would do to Spain. And what WAS done to Spain came fully up to the specifications. Nobody could do anything much more complete than what Dewey did at Manila, or what the American fleet did at Santiago. We couldn't do very much more than sink everything in sight, and that is what the bragging Americans did quite swiftly.

The fact is, and fathers and mothers should remember it when they are inclined to snub their bragging and enthusiastic children, MAN, LIKE A STEAM ENGINE, HAS A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF FORCE IN HIM. IF THE ENGINE IS STANDING QUIET, DOING NOTHING, AND THE FIRES ARE BURNING AND THE STEAM IS DEVELOPING, THE STEAM MUST BLOW OFF OR SOMETHING WILL HAPPEN.

When the human being is quiet, lacking the opportunity for action, if that force is inside there, boiling up, IT MUST BLOW OFF, AND THAT IS SIMPLY BRAGGING.

Let the fire die out under your boiler, let the steam and the water get cold, and you won't have any skirl bragging by the safety valve of the engine.

Let old age come along in the individual or the nation, with feebleness and lack of vitality, let the fire of life or of nationality die out, YOU WON'T HAVE ANY OFFENSIVE BRAGGING AT THE SAFETY VALVE, BUT YOU WON'T HAVE MUCH OF ANYTHING ELSE IN THE WAY OF NOISE OR ACCOMPLISHMENT.

NEVER AGAIN!

THE GOAL

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

All your wonderful inventions,
All your houses vast and tall,
All your great gun-fronted vessels,
Every fort and every wall,
With the peering of the eyes,
They shall pass and they shall fail.

As you sit among the idle,
That your vacator gave birth,
As you count the hoarded treasures,
That you think of priceless worth,
Time is digging roads to hide them,
In the bosom of the earth.

There shall come a great convulsion,
Or a rushing salt wave,
From a subterranean cave,
And a host of world's possessions
Shall be buried in one grave.

From the centuries of science,
We are bringing back again
Buried awe and trust and courage,
And the gods they worshipped then
The stars and planets and the sun,
Built by primitive men.

Did they steal, and lie, and slaughter?
Did they steep their souls in shame?
Did they sell eternal life for gold?
Just to win a passing fame?
For the time of a man?
For the time of a name?

We are hurrying all together
Toward the silence and the night;
There is nothing worth the seeking,
But the sun-kissed mortal breath—
There is nothing worth the doing,
But the doing of the right.

Making Life Worth Living

Message to Ambitious Men and Wives Fond of Ease

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

Men and women who read your husband feel that you sympathize with him in the difficulties that trusts and responsibilities.

Have you been ready to take a philosophical, stoical, cheerful view of the economic and deprivations forced upon you, or have you been disappointed, complaining or rebellious, or by a contrary view have you been driven to the verge of despair and suicide by your half-considered complaint at his failure?

And you, sir, have you made your wife realize during those years of hard work in the world to you, and that you sympathize and companionship are more to you than all the honors the world could offer you would be without them? Or have you left her to guess this by a single word, a single glance deeper and deeper into his business, and rarely speak to her unless it was to find fault and complain of small delinquencies, with no word of praise for great virtues?

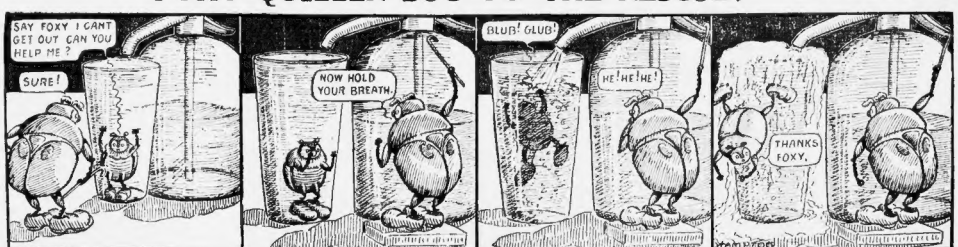

Remember these questions solemnly to yourself, and then ask yourself what makes life worth living?

Is it just, first of all, a peaceful, untroubled home companionship with dear ones, and the giving and receiving of simple pleasures, and of sympathy and love?

What you will a fortune be if you love these and give up all else?

Would it not be wise to obtain and retain the best things as you go along? The end of the journey is not far—and the only thing you can take across is Love.
